ADMINISTERED BY SCREEN AUSTRALIA

www.screenaustralia.gov.au | POCU@screenaustralia.gov.au

Screen Australia administers the Producer Offset and Australia's Official Co-production program. It is the lead Australian Government agency responsible for supporting the development, production, promotion and distribution of Australian screen content in all its forms, across all platforms.

SERVICES PROVIDED TO FILMMAKERS

Screen Australia develops Australian voices by supporting screen practitioners to expand their skills, grow their businesses, and increase their international networks, ensuring our industry remains globally competitive. The agency invests directly in Australian feature films, documentaries, TV drama, children's content, online series, First Nations content and games. Additionally, the agency provides authoritative and relevant data and research to both the industry and government.

THE PRODUCER OFFSET

The Producer Offset is a refundable tax offset (rebate) for Australian films. To be regarded as an Australian film, the project must demonstrate it contains Significant Australian Content (SAC) or be an Official Co-production.

The Producer Offset is paid after a project is completed and Screen Australia has issued the production company with a Final Certificate.

The amount of the Offset is determined as a percentage of the Qualifying Australian Production Expenditure (QAPE). It is:

- 40% of QAPE incurred on theatrical feature films
- 30% of QAPE incurred on other eligible formats (for example, series or single episode programs made for TV, SVOD or online, documentary series and short-form animations)

Broadly speaking, QAPE is expenditure incurred on goods and services provided in Australia for the making of the film or program.

ELIGIBILITY: To be eligible for the Producer Offset, a film or program must:

- Be completed
- Have Significant Australian Content (SAC) or be an Official Co-production
- Be an eligible format
- Have QAPE that meets or exceeds the relevant threshold
- Be made by an applicant company which is an Australian company, or a foreign company with an Australian permanent residency and an Australian Business Number (ABN).

Screen Australia determines whether a film has SAC based on published guidelines which have regard to:

- The subject matter of the film or program
- The place where the film was made
- The nationalities and places of residence of the people who took part in making it
- The details of production expenditure incurred
- Any other matters that Screen Australia considers to be relevant, including the extent to which Australian producers and key creatives have a share in the copyright, profit and recoupment for the film.

OFFICIAL CO-PRODUCTIONS

Official Co-productions do not need to meet the SAC test to access the Producer Offset.

Australia currently has treaties in force with Canada, China, Germany, India, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Korea, Malaysia, Singapore, South Africa, the United Kingdom and Memoranda of Understandings with France and New Zealand.

These agreements set out the parameters for how two or more co-producers can make an eligible co-production, including the minimum financial and creative contributions. These agreements and the Screen Australia co-production guidelines are available on the Screen Australia website.

Established as part of the City of Gold Coast, the Gold Coast Film Commission provides expert industry advice on financial incentives, introductions to our internationally recognised crew and a pathway to essential government agencies.

We offer a diverse range of spectacular locations, state-of-the-art facilities and fast-tracked permit approvals to help your project run smoothly. Home to some of the most renowned filming locations, we are now one of the most sought-after destinations for local, interstate and international screen productions. We are your one stop shop for screen production on Australia's Gold Coast – Make Believe It Here.

The launch of the Gold Coast Film Commission in August 2023 signifies the City's commitment to the screen industry.

We are Australia's only local government to be included in the Association of Film Commissions International (AFCI).

We provide a dedicated team to support and assist the industry with financial incentives and advice for production on the Gold Coast.
